Subject: A commitment to our community

Dear colleagues,

As faculty, we all embrace diversity of perspectives and experiences as central to advancing the knowledge and research we collectively pursue.

In this moment of uncertainty, I write to reinforce a deep commitment to our unique community of scholars that comes to Cambridge from all over the world to pursue this mission with the shared goal of making the world a better place.

If you have not yet read President Faust's message, I encourage you to do so, for in addition to its powerful message, it outlines resources Harvard makes available to our faculty, students, and staff.

Harvard is a community enriched by all of its members.

Sincerely,
Mike Smith
